Academic Placement Details

1. The FDU Academic Writing test is mandatory for all new arriving students regardless of the English Test results provided at Admission. Fairleigh Dickinson University uses the English Placement Test (EPT) to evaluate a student's ability to write effectively at an academic level. The test score is based on how well the student can write an argumentative essay in which they present a point of view and support it with appropriate evidence. The test results are recorded on a 18-points scale: Content, Organization, Language Use. Each category is scored using a 6-point scale ranging from minimal evidence (1) to full evidence (6). On the Vancouver campus, applicants must score 15 or higher in order to be placed into the regular academic program without conditions.
